

Face of Fillmore

The Face of Fillmore has taken on a festive autumn look thanks to the decorating of Jack and Linda Davies.

It seems the couple had visited other communities where a similar thing was happening and decided Fillmore needed a fall face-lift as well. They talked to City Recorder Kevin Orton who sent them to the city council. It didn't take much convincing to get the go-ahead to decorate. Fillmore City even helped with the money for the corn stalks.

Jack, Linda and their family tied tall corn stalks to each of the light posts from 100 North to 200 South, then added large autumn colored bows to add a brightly colored finishing touch.

Talk was of adding straw bales and pumpkins to add variety to the decorations.

There are plans for a competition in the coming years, possibly having families or businesses each do a lamp post as a decorating contest with prizes given for the best ones.

Whatever the future brings, the response to this year's decorations has been amazing with much talk of it on social media and in other places.

A huge thank you to the Davies' for starting what we hope will be a great autumn season tradition in Fillmore.
