

The Face of Fillmore

By Sherry Shepard
October 10, 2007

The Face of Fillmore applauds the work being done on the Central Baptist Church at 200 West and 400 North this week.

The building, a double wide modular unit, has been on the property for several years and is used at the meetinghouse for this Baptist congregation.

Improvements to the exterior began in early May with work being done by the Ayers family and other members of the congregation. Logs are being put in place, then treated to give them the shiny log appearance so popular in log construction. Log steps are being built. Windows and doors were the first to be upgraded for both their appearance and their heat saving value. To top off the project, a steeple will be placed on top of the building to add to its religious atmosphere.

Plans are also underway for the grounds, which will eventually have a graveled parking area, as well as planters with flowers and shrubs in them.

Pastor Merle Ayers is enthusiastic when discussing plans for this improvement project and about the progress that is happening to see those plans completed.

