

The Face of Fillmore

By Sherry Shepard

October 24, 2007

The Face of Fillmore this week recognizes the landscaping done during the summer at the Fillmore Middle School.

While trees have grown for years along the north parking lot and in the alcove on the north side of the building, the west side of the building near the main entrance needed some beautification. This project was the idea of school secretary Karen Lund.

On June 21, custodians Bruce Robison and Milt Lawhorn began the planting of several shrubs and trees mostly along the west of the building. These included sea foam tams, forsythia and flowering plum bushes. With this variety of plants comes the possibility of blossoms at different times throughout the spring season.

In just the few months since their planting, the new bushes have show signs of growth and the promise of getting more attractive as they mature. This brings a reminder to all of us that there is no time like the present to do our planting for future enjoyment and beauty in our yards and neighborhoods.