

Face of Fillmore

One of the best ways I know of to get people thinking and talking about the past of their community is to bring out an old picture and reminisce about the people they see, some of whom they may not have thought of for years. Conversations then transition from recognizing the people to fond memories of experiences with them.

This week I am sharing a photo my friend Jeri Robinson shared with me. It is of the Third Ward Relief Society in the fall of 1961. I remember a large number of these ladies. It was entertaining, as well, to try to remember which houses they lived in. Interestingly, only one of those in the picture is still living.

Take a close look and see who you have memories of in this picture then get out others you may have and share them with family and friends. It's a great way to spend an afternoon.
